ASCO Quality Training Program

ASCO's Quality Training Program (QTP) Eligibility Requirements

Thank you for your interest in ASCO's Quality Training Program (QTP)! Below you will find the list of requirements for oncology practices to meet in order to participate. To learn more about QTP please visit asco.org/qtp.

1. Applicants must be part of a practice or institution core team consisting of at least two (2) and no more than five (5) applicants.

2. Each team must have an ASCO member at their practice.

3. Applications must be submitted in one sitting and cannot be saved and returned to later to complete.

4. Applicants must upload resumes/CVs for all applicants and one (1) statement of support from their leadership within this application before submitting.

5. The program is contingent on full payment of fees before the first in-person learning session.

6. All team members must attend the in-person learning sessions.
   - Applicants must be willing to commit to a quality improvement project at their practice/institution.

7. A QTP project is a quality improvement initiative that aims to improve patient care. These projects typically involve identifying a problem, developing interventions, collecting data, and evaluating results.

8. Applicants must provide a brief narrative describing the problem their team wants to address in their project.

9. Applicants must provide a statement of support, written and signed by the leadership of their practice/institution, indicating their willingness to protect time for applicants' travel to/from and participation in the three in-person learning sessions, the virtual coaching sessions, and project work during the Quality Training Program and how quality improvement training for the proposed team will contribute to the practice/institution in the long term.

10. Applicants must provide information about their practice/institution, including its organizational structure, medical specialties, number of oncology physicians, and whether it is currently registered to participate in ASCO's Quality Oncology Practice Initiative (QOPI®).

11. Applicants must provide their contact information, including their name, email address, phone number, company, address, city/town, state/province, ZIP/postal code, and country.
